

Pisang Peak Climbing

Overview

Want a thrilling adventure in the area of Annapurna? Then scaling the Pisang peak is a good option. In this area, you should spend about two to three weeks. Pisang peak climbing is a famous adventure of 6000 m, suitable for climbers of all levels. It's a trekking spot for beginners. So the Pisang point is fine if this is your first ascension.

You walk along lovely woodland trails overlooking many mountain tops. The roads are connected to the circuits of Annapurna. You also cross a high pass, Thorong La Pass, when you get to the summit. And on these routes to visit Jomsom and Muktinath, a few famous places.

Pisang Peak climbing is the most popular among the trekking peak climbings of Nepal in the Annapurna region. Trekkers with little experience in climbing can combine the popular classic Annapurna circuit trek with Pisang Peak climbing to have the taste of climbing on the Himalayas in Nepal. The peak rises above from Pisang village and yak pastures in a uniform slope of ice and snow to the final summit pyramid. Pisang peak is considered one of the easy climbing peaks among the trekking peaks in Nepal. To reach the base camp from Pisang village, the path ascends through sparse wood and pasture to a Kharka at (4,380m) which is considered the best place for setting up the base camp. High Camp is set up at (5,400m) climbing to a shoulder on the South-West Ridge.
